New Issues
Crop Up In Legislature

Harrisburg (AP)—New issues of controversy — fair employment practices and liquor — ranged alongside of taxes yesterday to necessitate a summer session of the General Assembly.

Summer is just a month away and both Republican and Democratic lawmakers are agreed that they will be in session then.

The House Labor Relations committee approved last week a bill to ban discrimination in employment or union membership because of race, creed, color or national origin.

Although FEPC is part of both the Republican and Democratic election platforms, there is enough opposition to the measure to insure a floor battle.

And a dry vs. wet fight appeared certain on a number of controversial liquor bills that have reached the House floor.

One bill in particular has aroused the ire of temperance groups. It would permit the sale of bottled liquor at public bars. At present, you can buy bottled liquor in Pennsylvania only at State liquor stores.

Another liquor bill — this one, backed by dry groups — would prohibit State liquor stores from operating in communities voting dry. At present, some State stores operate in dry towns although taprooms are banned.

The Senate impasse on Gov. John S. Fine's proposal for a one-half of one per cent personal income tax must also be resolved before the lawmakers can talk about adjournment.

Eleven Republican senators opposed the measure at a GOP caucus and the administration returned the bill to the Senate Finance committee rather than risk defeat in a floor vote.

That $119,000,000 gap in Fine's projected $1,220,000,000 budget for the next two years must be filled before either chamber can go into action on appropriation bills.

Fine is standing pat so far on his insistence that the Legislature pass the income tax, suggesting that its opponents come up with a substitute tax program.

There has been no concrete effort, however, to replace the income levy.

Sen. M. Harvey Taylor (R-Dauphin), Republican State chairman, said that unless a tax program is enacted it will be necessary to cut educational and welfare institutions, teachers' salaries and aid to municipalities.

Pravda Sees
U.S. Tiring

London, (AP) — Pravda, Russia's official Communist newspaper, made its first comment yesterday on Sen. Edwin Johnson's proposal for a Korean cease-fire, and other Communist newspapers in Europe gave extensive publicity to the idea.

Pravda interpreted the proposal as an indication that some elements in the United States are getting tired of the war.

Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) offered a resolution last Thursday in the U. S. Senate asking the United Nations to call upon both sides to declare an effective armistice along the 38th parallel, the old dividing line, on June 23, anniversary of the outbreak of fighting. He proposed that all foreign troops be withdrawn from Korea before the end of 1951.

Pravda and other Soviet newspapers gave great prominence to the proposal Saturday. Moscow dispatches noted that this was the first peace proposal coming from the United States to receive much attention in the Soviet Union in recent months. Some western diplomats in Moscow were quoted as saying the attention given to the Johnson idea might be significant. They wondered if the Soviet Union might support such a proposal.

Global Thinking
Held Important

—State College — (AP) — Newspapers must instill "international or global thinking" in their readers for America to build a stable peace, says Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower.

The Pennsylvania State College president offered that suggestion Saturday night in an address at the closing session of the two-day Pennsylvania press conference.

More Than 200 Inmates
Overpower Guards, Stage
Uprising In Utah Prison

Point-of-the-Mountain, Utah, (AP)—Hot-tempered inmates of the Utah State prison overpowered six guards and rioted yesterday smashing furniture, windows and equipment.

More than 200 of the 532 inmates jumped into the orgy for several hours until a truce brought partial order back last night.

The rioters released all inmates of death row. But locked doors at the ends of corridors of cell-houses prevented escapes by the doomed men or other inmates.

Some four hours after the trouble began, the four guards still held then were released. The two other hostages had escaped through windows.

The truce and release of the guards were effected by six prisoner spokesmen who complained to authorities that some of the prison officials had been unfair.

The rioters began moving back to their cells. With them went assurances from their spokesmen that officials and the State Board of Corrections had agreed their complaints of partiality would be studied.

One prison source reported some inmates got into the prison hospital and presumably had access to narcotics and other medical supplies.

Weapon-toting peace officers surrounded the now multimillion dollar prison.

The State department made public the 350-word note, which was delivered Saturday to Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin.

While rejecting the Russian program that called for a Pacific big-four meeting, including Red China, to draft a treaty, the note urged the Russians to join in completing an American-sponsored treaty now nearing conclusion.

The Russians had proposed in their plan that Japan should be permitted limited military forces for its own self-defense. In attacking this point the United States coupled it with the no-foreign-troops provision and borrowed a phrase from a 12-year-old speech of Generalissimo Stalin to make the charge of "conniving at aggression."

What the Soviet Union wants, the United States said, is that Japan be made dependent upon its own armed forces for defense. Stalin, the note continued, argued in March, 1939, that "adequate defense against aggression requires collective security" while the policy of letting "each country defend itself from aggressors" means "conniving at aggression."

The Russian note, delivered to American Ambassador Alan Kirk in Moscow on May 7, asked for a meeting of the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, Russia and China (meaning Communist China) in June or July to bring about the "speedy conclusion of a peace treaty with Japan."

Such a procedure would give Russia and Red China each a veto over the kind of treaty the United States, Britain and other countries want and have been working up for several months against Russia's objections. In turning it down the United States said it would not in fact result in the "speedy conclusion" of a treaty.

The biggest decision to be reached in the near future will be whether to lift the 10 per cent ceiling on wage increases above Jan. 15, 1950 levels another two or three per cent — or even more if labor unions have their way — to make up for living cost rises since the wage-price freeze of Jan. 25.

A new consumers price index will be announced by the Bureau of Labor Statistics this week. The board is committed to "take another look" at the 10 per cent formula on the basis of that index, which will cover prices as of April 15. Since that is expected to show a boost over prices prevailing when the freeze went into effect, the board is likely to revise its formula upward, if at all.

The board must proceed warily about relaxing controls, however, because strong sentiment has been developing in industry and farm groups for scrapping all wage and price controls when they expire June 30. President Truman has asked for a two-year extension, and tightening, of those powers.

That's an absolute reversal of the State department's position," Taft declared.

Rusk, speaking in New York Friday night, said the U. S. "will not acquiesce in the degradation that is being forced" on China by the Communists. He pledged "important aid" to opponents of the Red regime and said the Chinese will find friends everywhere "if they declare for freedom."

Taft said Rusk's statement "means support of the guerrillas" opposing the Communists in South China, and means a strengthening of military aid to Chiang Kai-Shek's forces in Formosa.

By contrast, Taft said, only a year ago President Truman would not even provide advice, much less assistance, to Chiang's forces.

A viewpoint similar to Taft's was expressed by Senator Brewster (R-ME), who said the administration "while putting up quite a din of opposition, has been retreating under that smokescreen very close to the MacArthur line."

To Get Some Powers

Washington, (AP) — Leaders of the Senate Banking committee predicted yesterday President Truman will get some — but far from all — of the broad new powers he seeks under an extension of the defense production act.

Two weeks ago the average price or regular gas was 26.9 cents a gallon. Last week it started dropping.

Philadelphia (AP) — A gasoline price war spread through many sections of Philadelphia yesterday knocking down the cost of a gallon of regular gas to a low of 20.9 cents at one station.

Many stations in the city posted prices of one to two cents higher on regular gas. Prices on high-test gas followed the trend, usually two or three cents a gallon more than the regular product.

Bristling U. S.
Note Rejects
Russian Plan

Washington (AP)—The United States last night accused Russia of "conniving at aggression" by seeking a Japanese peace treaty which would deny Japan the right of collective self-defense.

A Russian treaty-making plan, which this country rejected in a note published last night, would bar foreign forces from Japan after the occupation ends and there-by block an arrangement for American troops to help provide Japanese security.

The State department made public the 350-word note, which was delivered Saturday to Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin.

While rejecting the Russian program that called for a Pacific big-four meeting, including Red China, to draft a treaty, the note urged the Russians to join in completing an American-sponsored treaty now nearing conclusion.

Greyhound Bus
Workers Strike

Pittsburgh (AP) — A work stoppage of about 300 drivers and 200 mechanics kept operations of the Greyhound bus lines paralyzed yesterday in the Pittsburgh district.

A score of buses, en route to St. Louis, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington, Detroit and other cities, were unable to leave the Pittsburgh terminal. Passengers were put on trains to finish their journeys.

Philadelphia (AP) — An Office of Price Stabilization study in every city where the State Milk Control commission proposes milk price increases was promised yesterday.

Victor E. Moore, regional OPS director, said public hearings will be conducted where deemed necessary. Moore explained that the study and hearings would give the OPS an opportunity to determine whether the proposed increases are justified.

The commission must obtain OPS approval before an above-ceiling increase can go into effect, Moore said. The regional OPS office will make recommendations to Washington on the basis of its own study and hearings, he added.

During the past week the Milk commission ordered hearings in six cities to set the stage for possible price increases. These include Allentown for Lehigh area June 6.

THE 28TH STATE CONVENTION OF Lions International got underway yesterday at Buck Hill Falls. Pictured above are Harry J. Drennan, convention chairman; Earl D. Baumann, M. D., international director; Herbert C. Petry Jr., international president and main speaker today; Arthur J. Henry, governor of this district; Herbert R. Hargrave, international director.

Dinner, Memorial Service
Launch Lions' Convention

Buck Hill Falls — Over 800 delegates of Pennsylvania's Lions International gathered here at the Inn yesterday to put initial machinery in motion for the 28th annual State convention.

A total of 1,200 delegates are expected to convene here during the four-day convention.

First item yesterday on the busy convention schedule was a tour of the Poconos.

After the counsellors' dinner last night at the Inn, the Lions' famed necrology service was held in the Buck Hill auditorium. The service is an annual convention affair in memory of fellow-members who have died during the past year.

Highlight of today's schedule will be an address by the Lions International president, H. C. Petry Jr., of Carizzo Springs, Texas.

His address will be broadcast over Radio Station WVFO at 2:05 p. m.

The scripture reading and memorial address for the necrology service were given by Rev. Ernest T. Campbell, pastor of Stroudsburg Methodist church.

He related Christ was offered two ways of memorializing himself — through the medium of a large tabernacle or by accomplishing the work He felt responsible to undertake and leading the type of life He did.

Rev. Campbell suggested the departed Lion members might better be remembered for the deeds and acts they did and accomplished, rather than the material gains they made in their life.

Following his address, the names of 200 Lions who died in the past year were read. As each name was read a light in the "L" of the Lions insignia was illuminated until the entire letter was lighted with 200 bulbs.

Also taking part in the service were Rev. Vincent Harrity, of St. Ann's R. C. church, Mount Pocono; Rev. Dale Neuffer, of East Bangor Methodist church, and the Stroudsburg High school mixed chorus.

The committee in charge of the service consisted of Harry J. Drennan, Robert Haigh, Robert Younkens and C. Willis Dunlap, chairman.

Ushers were Bernette Roan, Barrett High school; Jane Parsons, Bangor High school; Nancy Wiley, Coolbaugh Township High school; Mary Jane Williams, East Stroudsburg High school; Kathryn Griffith, Polk High school; Charlotte Bach, Portland Junior High school; Lynne Slabosh, Stroudsburg High school; Jane Bowman, Pocono High school; Georgine Judge, Tobyhanna Township High school.

The service was followed by a concert by the Apollo Male chorus of Bangor.

While the convention officially gets under way at 9 a. m. today, lady Lions will begin a tour of the lower Poconos. They will have lunch at Penn-Stroud hotel, Stroudsburg, and return to the Inn in time for President Petry's address.

Sail For Europe

New York (AP)—Nearly 2,000 soldiers, many of them World War II veterans, sailed aboard a troop transport yesterday bound for Europe.

Sabre Jets
Bag Three
Enemy MIGs

Tokyo, Monday, (AP) — Allied forces early today smashed vicious new Chinese attacks in central Korea as rammed strong armored patrols against Red positions in the west.

The Reds massed more men for 20 miles in front of the U. S. Second Division — already victor over 96,000 Communists who had tried to engulf it.

An Allied officer said "the situation is still dangerous" there.

The U. S. Eighth Army communique reported today that bitter fighting raged in most sectors across the mountainous peninsula as the Red offensive entered its sixth day. Headquarters emphasized that Red casualties continued to be heavy — but made no estimates.

In the air yesterday, 26 U. S. Sabre Jets bested 50 Russian-type MIG-15 jets in a new battle over northwestern Korea. Pilots said they definitely destroyed three MIGs, probably a fourth and damaged five without loss to themselves.

On the bloody central front, the U. S. Second Division hurled back waves of Chinese striking at its left, or western, flank south of Chunchon, between 45 and 50 miles northeast of Seoul. Previous Red assaults had hit the right flank in East-central Korea.

An Eighth Army briefing officer said the gallant division had pretty well sealed a gaping hole on the right flank, to the east between Hangey and Pungnam.

It was in the Hangey area, some 15 miles southeast of Chunchon, that Chinese assault waves punctured Republic of Korea (ROK) positions and threatened to outflank the Second Division late last week.

"The situation is still dangerous," a briefing officer commented. "The Chinese have yet another penetration in the Allied lines and are continuing to come through the hole."

Location of that gap was not specified. However, after the Chinese breakthrough in the Hangey area on the division's right flank, dispatches reported the Chinese also had cut a lateral road farther east, some 25 miles inland from the east coast.

But the "Indianhead" division's brilliant stand appeared to have plugged the most menacing gap. Pressure on the right flank Sunday slackened under heavy Allied artillery fire.

AP Correspondent William C. Barnard reported artillery and aerial fire in that sector reduced the Red force of 1,000 to 300 Sunday night. The 300 survivors fled.

On the west-central front, Allied forces advanced more than two miles Sunday up the Pukhan river valley northeast of Seoul. This reconnaissance in force was aimed at Changgong, some 25 miles northeast of the old Republic capital.

Surprised Communists troops, hit while they were trying to mount probing attacks, were repulsed "with moderate to heavy losses." One advancing Allied column reached a point northeast of Masogu, 18 miles northeast of Seoul.

On the western front, ROK troops smashed more than six miles northwest of Seoul against Communists in estimated battalion size strength.

Truck Plunges Down Bank After Missing Curve

Mount Bethel — A tractor-trailer loaded with perishable goods upset after running off Route 611 near the Allegheny creek bridge shortly before noon Saturday.

H. C. Phillips, of Washington, D. C., was driving the transport south on Route 611 when it failed to negotiate a curve leading away from the bridge.

The tractor plunged down an embankment into a field next to the Sayer and Kern garage. As the tractor hit the soft ground at the foot of the embankment, the trailer crashed down on top of it and damaged both units extensively.

Phillips crawled from the wreckage complaining only of an arm injury.

Confusion In Harrisburg

Now that the State Senate has firmly rejected Governor Fine's demand for a State income tax, reports from Harrisburg say there is "confusion and uncertainty" among legislators and State officials about what to do next.

The actions and words of some of these gentlemen seem to prove the point.

For instance, Representative Norman Wood of Lancaster County, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, is quoted as saying no appropriation bills will be approved until the tax issue is settled.

That puts the cart pretty exactly before the horse. And it's exactly the attitude that got Governor Fine in trouble with the Legislature when he wanted new taxes before the budget got a coming over.

The budget consists of the appropriation bills which are in Mr. Wood's committee. And how does anybody in the Legislature know how much money will be needed until the budget is decided?

What Mr. Wood is saying, in effect, is that his committee won't decide how much the State will spend until they find out how much the State is going to take away from the taxpayers. Which should be a clear tip-off to the taxpayers on how the State makes up its budgets.

Also, this seems to reinforce the suspicion that if the State doesn't get so much money, the State will find ways of getting along without so much. That suspicion is pretty prevalent, right now.

Another example of confusion is the report that Governor Fine may tell the legislators that, if they don't want an income tax, it's up to them to provide a substitute.

This attitude, if correctly described, seems to ignore some of the facts of life. To list a few:

1—There has been no convincing demonstration that the State needs as much as Mr. Fine says it needs.

2—Nobody can know how much the State needs until the budget—which is open to question in at least some details—is given a thorough airing. And the budget is bottled up in Mr. Wood's committee.

3—The final responsibility for both the budget and the taxes is the Legislature's not Mr. Fine's. The Governor's budget is only a proposed budget.

We remain of the opinion that if this $1,220,000,000 proposed budget is given a thorough airing and subjected to some careful surgery, most of the need for new tax money would evaporate.

Governor Fine's best course would be to encourage such an examination—for the good of the State.

Careless Cyclists

This is the time of year when young and careless bicycle riders add to trials and tribulations of motorists and police of cities and towns. The ecstasies of spring seems to make them forget that they, too, must conform to reasonable regulation.

A word to these youngsters in school assemblies by the authorities with emphasis on all safety rules might go a long way towards preventing a serious accident.

Then if state and local regulations aren't followed, the hand of the law will come down. Careful enforcement isn't hard boiled at all; it's merely good insurance of life and limb.

One of the largest and newest of Great Lakes ore carriers has 15 times the capacity of the first ore ship designed for the trade in 1869. It can haul more than 18,000 tons of ore at one time.

For every ton of steel poured by Russia and her satellites in the first half of 1950, it is estimated that nearly three tons were poured in the United States.

Natural gas is a preferred fuel in steel furnaces because it contains almost no objectionable constituents and leaves no wastes or residues.

Hollywood

By Gene Handsaker

Hollywood—"You look at Garbo today," suggested Marlene Dietrich, and I'd love to if the Silent Swede didn't live so like a hermit. "She looks exactly as she did then."

Miss Dietrich was referring to her arrival in Hollywood from Germany in 1930.

"And Joan Crawford. Do you think she looks so different? A little thinner if anything. Joan Bennett—she has a grandchild, and she looks about 20 to me."

Miss Bennett, at 41, will be tickled to hear this.

The Berlin-born star was generously making the point that, contrary to a widespread impression, she has no special corner on glamour-after-40.

"I do not see when I look about me," she said, "that there is such a change in anybody. Oh, of course, as the fashion changes, they look different in their clothes, and their hair changes. There are lots of people my age in the film business." Marlene speculated on why she is often pointed to in the senior-glamour bracket: "They just don't happen to have grandchildren." She has two—boys aged three and one.

As to her own age (43 by her admission; 46 in the almanacs): "Some people say I'm 60. Some even say 90."

How does she feel when she hears that? "I just think these people have nothing else to worry about."

Sultry, mysterious, low-voiced—these adjectives come to mind when you talk to Dietrich. Famed for wearing slacks, she had come to her set wearing a dark blue pair. Over them, a pink dress was piled high in curls and ruffles.

Hal Mohr, who photographed her in "Destiny Rides Again" 13 years ago and is again her cameraman in "Chuck-a-Luck," says she is as photogenic as ever. "No jowls or bags under the eyes," he pointed out.

Naturally, anybody stuck with that kind of I. O. U. wants to collect it. The only chance Niles has of getting his $4,500 is from royalties dribbling in from Hopkins' writings.

Maybe there were mink coats and deep freezes passed around during the heyday of the New Deal. Certainly plenty of White House friends cashed in on the war boom, such as the Carson brothers and dozens of other fly-by-night promoters who built a backlot garage repair shop or some such into an industrial empire. Crude as these operations were, they were piker stuff compared to today's influence peddlers who grab it by the millions from the RFC, the Agriculture department or other government agencies.

These Days -- By George E. Sokolsky

Sokolsky

1921 to 1927
Many are the temptations for a columnist to leave the MacArthur investigation and to turn to pleasanter subjects. Yet, I am impelled to turn to George Marshall's testimony that he had served in China from 1924 to 1927. Senator Alexander Smith, who was interrogating General Marshall, let it pass as a routine matter, which surprised me as the New Jersey Senator is a bright citizen.

Those years were the most crucial in modern Chinese history. Surely no one could have lived through Russia's experiment with the conquest of a country by its own citizens, which occurred in China between 1924 and 1927, without learning something.

It was on July 7, 1924, that L. Karakhan, the Russian extraordinary plenipotentiary to China, in a speech at the Peking National University, announced:

"We have driven imperialism out of our country, but only then shall we be satisfied when there will not be a single oppressed nation in the world. When you will be strong enough to start the battle against the imperialism which will oppress your country, you may be assured of the sympathies with your cause of the people of the Union."

Michael Borodin arrived in Canton late in 1923, ostensibly as an advisor to Sun Yat-sen, but actually as the agent of the third international, with a corps of advisers and General Galens-Blucher, to use China as a springboard for the world revolution.

Borodin accomplished in 1924 what Marshall failed to accomplish in 1946, namely, the union of the Nationalists and Communists. I quote from my book, (now out of print) "The Tinder Box of Asia."

"Dr. Sun and Borodin settled the policy of the Kuomintang on the basis of a threefold thesis: 1. Cooperation between the Kuomintang and the Chinese Communist party; 2. Cooperation between Nationalist China and Soviet Russia; 3. Support of the Labourers and Peasants movement. Dr. Sun agreed that members of the Chinese Communist party could become members of the Kuomintang as individuals. Thus the ranks of the Kuomintang were swelled by a new membership...."

In January, 1924, the First Party Congress was called at Canton and the leaders were instructed in Soviet methods. The Nationalist government was reorganized on the Russian model. Michael Borodin was made high adviser to the central executive committee of the Kuomintang, which controlled both the government and the party. In fact for three years, he ruled a large part of China. General Marshall was in China during those three years.

Dr. Sun died on March 12, 1925. Borodin selected Chiang-Kai-Shek to seize power because he had studied in Russia, in the Red Army schools.

On May 30, 1925, a strike started in Shanghai over the shooting of a Chinese laborer in a Japanese mill by the British police. This sparked a nationwide general strike, with bloody riots and a vast anti-British boycott. This rioting was so fierce that it reached every city, including Tientsin, where General Marshall was.

In fact, it was a Communist method to disorganize the country so that a revolution would be inevitable. It produced a Russian-fomented-and-directed civil war in China.

The British, French, Italians, and Americans sent additional troops, in fairly large numbers, to protect their nationals. As a matter of fact, a regiment of Marines under General Smedley Butler was sent to China to protect U. S. General Marshall ought to recall that. I was a witness to all of it; General Marshall witnessed it in Tientsin and Peking.

Borodin attempted to depose Chiang and actually take over. When Chiang established the Nanking government, he expelled Borodin and the Russian advisers and many Chinese Communists were killed. It is estimated that in Shanghai alone, 150,000 of them were killed.

In 1932, I wrote: "...In China a change can only come about by revolution. A revolution can be more effectively worked by the Chinese Communist party than by any other element in the country. My experience in Russia during the Communist revolution confirms the opinion that such a revolution can only succeed if any important units of the army are willing to join the Communists. In present circumstances in China it is possible to believe that a large section of the army will go over if the Communists win a decisive victory."

General Marshall witnessed these events. I wonder whether he reached any conclusions then to guide him now.

My New York

New York—It was just as I feared: Bruno Furst, the world's outstanding mnemonist, turned out to be, not a crackpot, but an intelligent, reasonable, amiable man, when I saw him this afternoon. It's always that way. I latch on to somebody who looks like a magnificent crackpot because of his choice of vocation or avocation, and before I have talked with him five minutes, he has me convinced that what he is doing is the most logical thing in the world.

It was that way with the Montclair, N. J., rug dealer who lived in a tree, it was that way with Ed Sorocki who went swimming off Coney Island in mid-winter and so it was with Dr. Furst.

Mnemonist means memory expert, and it is unlikely that there is anyone experter at the game than Dr. Furst, an Alsatian who for a decade has operated the School of Memory and Concentration.

A mild and medium man, bespectacled and balding, the doctor works on the theory that the memory is a muscle. If unused, it becomes weak. If trained, it gets stronger and better. More than five thousand persons have been trained along these lines through the classes. Dr. Furst holds in Steinway Hall in New York and in other nearby cities, and it is the doctor's quiet claim that they can, if they wish, now memorize the Manhattan telephone directory.

I won't come out flatly and say anyone can be trained to have a brilliant memory," he told me today, "but let me put it this way: if you have a good memory, you can be trained to have an excellent memory; if yours is fair, it can be made good, and if it's poor, it at least can be brought up to average."

"There is no one trick or technique to accomplish this. It's a number of things. Association, for example; if you connect an observation with something you already know, you're on your way to a good memory. If there is one single thing that gives a person an outstanding memory, I suppose it is imagination."

Being continental, and thus automatically a showman, Dr. Furst has some neat and gaudy tricks that dramatize his own spectacular memory. He fanned out a deck of cards for me, face down, and asked me to pick one and then asked his wife, Lottie, who had her back turned and was doing something by the filing cabinets in his office, to tell me what card I had taken—which she did.

What it amounted to was Dr. Furst had memorized the position of every card in the deck, from a quick glance, and through a code in talking to Lottie, he had told her what card I had grabbed.

Then, he will sit back and let you ask him any power of two up to 106. Before you can finish asking the 99th power of two, he answers 633,825,300,114,700,748, 351,602,688—if I read my notes right. If you wish, he can teach you to learn the International Morse code in 15 minutes.

Naturally, Dr. Furst had a bad memory as a child. It was when he entered the University Politically, of course, the New Dealers always knew how to squeeze the most votes out of a taxpayer's dollar. But for sheer gall in this field the present day Fair Dealers make Roosevelt's pals look like bums.

Take the Mississippi job buying, for instance. There never was a cruder operation, but when you examine it closely it's pure Pendergastism. Maybe it is a little rougher in spots than the average political thievery going on today, but the boys are getting in a hurry.

Ward bosses who can spot a political suicide before the gun is loaded are convinced Mr. Truman won't be around much longer. They want to get theirs while the getting is good, and if you've been teetotal on Pendergast politics it is only one way to do that. Steal it.

of Munich that he decided to do something about it. He took a course in memory training and from then on was sold on the subject; by the time he was practicing as a criminal lawyer, he knew every word in the German civil code, five thick volumes long.

I asked him about some of his difficult cases, and he told me about an engineer who had for psychological reasons become so painfully shy that he had to work at home and not in the plant his company operated. "He wasn't difficult to teach memory to," Dr. Furst said, "but I was particularly proud that my classes instilled such confidence in him that he was able to go back to the plant to work, get up and make speeches, and even assist me in teaching occasionally."

Looking at Life

One of the most insidious words in our language is "IF."

What makes it doubly harmful is the fact that it is not only a word but can easily become a way of life.

"If" connotes doubt, fear, lack of courage to act—and thus it becomes a closed door to progress.

That word "if" is creeping more and more into the correspondence that comes to my desk.

"I would do so-and-so IF—" it goes. Then the writer tells me that he would like to do certain things—"if."

Sometimes I wonder what has brought about this "if" attitude. Last night a friend and his wife came to call.

They told us that they had changed their vacation plans. They had intended to go on a cruise to the West Indies.

But instead they are taking a cottage at a nearby lake.

They sounded a bit downhearted about their anticipated substitute vacation, and they had been so enthusiastic about the cruise.

I knew the fellow hadn't lost his job, so the change couldn't be due to financial troubles.

I knew they were both healthy and full of the joy of life. So that wasn't it, either.

I knew they weren't the kind to hide away in the woods but loved gaiety and fun. So I asked him.

"Why did you give up the cruise idea?" I asked. "This new vacation plan is so entirely different from what you had planned before."

Then came the answer. It took many words, but I can give it to you in just one word—"IF."

Imagine us out there on the Atlantic, was the general idea. All the time we would wonder IF we'd be bombed. Can you picture what would happen IF a Russian submarine came along or even IF war broke out in Europe while we are away?

And so it went—a long tirade of fear all wrapped up in "IF."

This one would do that IF it weren't for the high taxes. That one would

TWO SHADOWS, I CAN'T FIGURE OUT HOW I GOT HERE. CAN YOU TELL ME?

THE EVIL ONES ABOVE HAVE WAYS TO TRAP EVEN THE WARRIORS, FRIEND ROY!

I REMEMBER THE SMALL MAN, ROCKJAW, SHOOTING A DART INTO ME, AND THEN I COULDN'T HELP DOING WHAT HE SAID!

A DART POISONED BY A DELUSION OF THE ANCIENT HOPITAWNS! IT DESTROYS REASON FOR MINUTES!

IT WAS USED ON ME WHEN I SEARCHED THE STRANGE CITY ABOVE. I WAS SENT HERE TO INVESTIGATE THE MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE OF INDIANS.

LOOKS LIKE ROCKJAW AND OX HAVE TRAPPED SOMEBODY ELSE?

Scout Wins Slocum Award

Newfoundland—A member of the Newfoundland troop, Boy Scouts of America, has received the Bruce Slocum award, presented annually to the outstanding Boy Scout of the Minisink Boy Scout district.

He is Wade Keen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keen and a brother of Dale Keen, who won the award in 1947 and 1948. Both brothers are Eagle Scouts and their father is active in scouting, serving as neighborhood Scout commissioner.

The award, made on the basis of character, high ideals and citizenship, was presented by J. Kenneth Shupp, Elmhurst, district commissioner, at the sixth annual Scouters' banquet of the district at Madisonville.

Wade, who became the district's third Eagle Scout last year, has 21 merit badges to his credit and holds the district record for completing work leading toward the Eagle rank in the shortest time. He earned the top ranking in Scoutdom in 25 months and maintained a perfect attendance record during the same period.

A Tenderfoot in October, 1948, Wade moved up three ranks in 1949, gaining second class rank in January, first class rank in April and Star Scout in September. He was made a Life Scout in May, 1950 and became an Eagle Scout in December.

A member of the ninth grade at the Greene-Dreher school, the honored Scout is active in the school band and played on the junior varsity basketball team.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and count every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Transfer Of Rev. Thomas To West Chester Reported; Rev. Nicholson May Move

Two Monroe county Methodist clergymen will be transferred to new charges next Sunday, according to unofficial reports received here last night.

It was announced in Stroudsburg Methodist church yesterday morning that Rev. Francis C. Thomas, pastor, is being transferred to West Chester.

And in Tobyhanna yesterday it was rumored that Rev. Robert E. Nicholson would also move on to a new charge.

Rev. Harold C. Eaton, pastor of East Stroudsburg Methodist church, will return to his church for the 11th consecutive year.

The Philadelphia Methodist conference, which has jurisdiction over this northern district, has been in session in Philadelphia since last Tuesday.

Rev. Francis C. Thomas

Assignment and transfer of clergymen will be the last order of business today. The changes will not be officially announced until about noon today.

According to Detlef A. Hansen, chairman of the Stroudsburg Methodist church's pastoral relations committee, Rev. Walter Johnson, now pastor of the Oak Lane church, near Philadelphia, is being considered for the Stroudsburg post.

Mr. Hansen said he had been informed of this by the district superintendent.

Rev. and Mrs. Thomas were in Philadelphia over the weekend. They are expected to return tonight.

Rev. Nicholson could not be reached for comment. It was not disclosed where he might possibly be transferred.

Rev. Thomas became pastor of the Stroudsburg church in March, 1944. During the past seven years he supervised an extensive $40,000 improvement program which included an entire church renovation.

Rev. Johnson, who has been mentioned as a possible successor, is 45 and the father of one daughter, a nurse at the Methodist hospital in Philadelphia.

In another change at Stroudsburg Methodist church John R. Wilson, general secretary of the YMCA, assumed his new duties as superintendent of the Sunday school. He succeeds Howard P. Chester.

Cars Collide On Route 115 Near Effort

Effort—Two cars were extensively damaged, but there were no personal injuries when sedans headed in opposite directions crashed nearly head-on on Route 115 north of the rock cut on Effort mountain at 4:35 p. m. yesterday.

State police of the Brodheadville substation said Charles Zideck, an 18-year-old farm youth from Manville, N. J., was driving northward on the highway behind a large truck.

After following the slowly moving truck uphill for a considerable distance, Zideck pulled out to make a pass and crashed into a south-bound machine operated by Mrs. Roberta Meade, 24-year-old Wilkes-Barre RD 1 housewife.

Mrs. Meade was accompanied by her husband, James E. Meade, while Walter Zideck and George Bodner, both of Manville, were passengers in the car driven by Charles Zideck. No one was injured.

Police said the entire left side of the Meade machine, a 1941 medium sedan, was damaged in the collision. Front left fender, wheel, tire and the hood of the Zideck car were smashed.
